

Miss Emily Crowe
BSc, MSc

Teaching Associate

Research Assistant

Office 1.3, 5 Priory Road
The Priory Road Complex,
Priory Road, Clifton BS8 1TU
(See a map)

+44 (0) 117 954 6620
emily.crowe@bristol.ac.uk

Summary

I gained a first class honours degree in Experimental Psychology from the University of Bristol where I was also awarded the Richard Gregory Prize for the most innovative final year project. I then gained an MSc with distinction in Psychological Research Methods from the University of Exeter.

My PhD investigates the effect of internal (e.g. task demands) and external (e.g. anxiety) factors on multiple object tracking and is supervised by Dr Chris Kent and Dr Angela Attwood.

Memberships

Organisations

School of Experimental Psychology

Recent publications

- Crowe, E, Howard, C, Attwood, A & Kent, C, 2019, 'Goal-directed unequal attention allocation during multiple object tracking'. Attention, Perception, and Psychophysics.
- Crowe, E, Gilchrist, I & Kent, C, 2018, 'New approaches to the analysis of eye movement behaviour across expertise while viewing brain MRIs'. Cognitive Research: Principles and Implications, vol 3.
- Crowe, E, Alderson, W, Rossiter, J & Kent, C, 2017, 'Expertise affects inter-observer agreement at peripheral locations within a brain tumor'. Frontiers in Psychology, vol 8.

View complete publications list in the University of Bristol publications system