Summary

Antonia's research is in law and geography where she explores how law, legality and maps construct space, place and 'the local'. She has particular interests in 'urban law', and the legal provisions and practices involved in largescale regeneration and infrastructure projects. More information on her research and copies of pre-publication papers can be found at <http://antonialayard.com>. She tweets as @antonialayard.

Antonia teaches courses on property, planning and environmental law and is PGR Director at Bristol Law School. Her book Law, Place & Maps will be published by Glasshouse Press, Routledge in 2018. She is on the Editorial Board of the Journal of Law and Society and an academic member of the AHRC and the ESRC Peer Review Colleges. She was an ESRC Fellow researching Localism, Law and Governance until September 2014.
